Contributing to Crypto Trading Bot

First off, thanks for taking the time to contribute! 🎉 👍

The following is a set of guidelines for contributing to Crypto Trading Bot. These are just guidelines, not rules. Use your best judgment, and feel free to propose changes to this document in a pull request.

Getting Started

Crypto Trading Bot is written in Python, and we welcome any contributions that you make. Please make sure to familiarize yourself with the codebase and the bot's functionality before diving in.

How Can I Contribute?

Reporting Bugs

If you encounter any bugs, please open an issue describing the bug and any reproduction steps you can provide. If possible, include details about your environment such as your operating system, Python version, and the version of any other relevant software.

Alternatively, you can directly report bugs or share any problems you are facing to the following email: enopennyllc@gmail.com

Suggesting Enhancements

If you have a great idea for a new feature, or if you want to suggest a change to an existing feature, please open an issue describing your idea. Be as detailed as possible in your explanation, and be sure to include any additional context such as use cases or other information.

Alternatively, you can send your suggestions to the following email: enopennyllc@gmail.com

Your First Code Contribution

To submit your own code to the project:

1. Fork the repo.
2. Create a new branch on your fork.
3. Make your changes in this new branch.
4. Submit a pull request with your changes.

Remember to be as clear and concise in your pull request description as possible to help the maintainers understand and review your code.

Style Guides

Python Style Guide

We adhere to PEP 8, the Python community's style guide. Please follow it when contributing Python code.

Additional Notes

Remember to follow the code of conduct at all times while participating in this project.

Thank you for your contribution!

If you have any questions or issues regarding the contribution process, you can reach out to us at enopennyllc@gmail.com